This is a seminar you cannot afford to miss. It is designed to assist practitioners to minimise clinical, public and other risk, highlighting both current and emerging risks for practitioners and how they can affect you and your practice. Dr David Curnow of ADAVB’s Defence Committee will bring a practical perspective to this must-attend seminar. Recent case data will be used to highlight aspects of each topic, and David Roddis (Group Risk Manager, Guild Insurance) provide feedback from a risk and insurance perspective as to why these areas are critical.

CLINICAL RISK: PERIODONTAL DISEASE – DR ADAM ROSENBERG
In recent years, there have been sizeable payouts for periodontal claims. General practitioners are usually the first to see periodontal disease in their patients. This session will assist the GP in diagnosis, highlighting a range of surveillance and charting techniques, and help practitioners make the decision of when to refer. The importance of communicating associated risks to patients will also be covered.

Dr Adam Rosenberg is in full time private periodontal practice and involved with teaching in the periodontal program at the University of Melbourne. Fields of interest include periodontal plastic surgery, implantology, guided bone and tissue regeneration.

ENVIRONMENTAL RISK: MERCURY AND OUR WATERWAYS – DR CHRIS CALLAHAN
Water authorities are responsible for supplying of water for commercial and domestic use, and for managing waste water. A water industry representative will outline the interaction of water supply and water waste with dental practices and present the case for dental mercury management.

Dr Callahan will speak on the ADAVB’s contribution to the dental mercury project and highlight practical implications of the new best management practice guidelines for all dental practices.

Dr Chris Callahan, a past President of the ADAVB, is in general practice. He is a visiting dentist at the Alfred Hospital’s Dental Unit and is a senior clinical demonstrator in removable prosthodontics at the School of Dental Science.

PUBLIC RISK IN AND AROUND YOUR PRACTICE – MR DAVID RODDIS
In an increasingly litigious environment, issues relating to public safety must be addressed. Accidents, both in and around your surgery, can result in sizeable payouts to claimants. This session will assist you to identify and minimise potential risks to public safety, both in and around the practice.

Mr David Roddis, Group Risk Manager for Guild Insurance is responsible for developing and driving tailored risk management solutions for healthcare professionals.

REGULATORY COMPLIANCE AND THE BOARD – MR PETER GARDNER
The new Health Professions Registration Act, which comes in to effect on 1 July 2007, will impact on the way practices are run and how practitioners interact with the Dental Practice Board of Victoria. Mr Gardner will explain what will be involved.

Mr Peter Gardner has been CEO of the Dental Practice Board of Victoria since February 2001. Before that, he worked as Registrar of the Psychologists Registration Board and as Deputy Registrar of the Medical Board.

CLINICAL RISK: ENDODONTICS – DR PHILLIPPE ZIMET
Complaints relating to endodontic treatment continue to be a significant proportion of all claims. Perforations and instrument breakages are amongst the most common mishaps leading to these claims. Dr Zimet will outline the latest information on potential risks and and the need for effective communication with your patients.

Dr Phillippe Zimet is a specialist endodontist in Dandenong. He is a consultant endodontist to Monash Medical Centre, as well as teaching at the School of Dental Science and Monash University Medical School.
