Dentoalveolar Trauma Update:
Have Our Treatments Recently Changed?
In partnership with South Eastern Regional Group

The management of dental injuries is an ever-evolving science. Many traditional treatment options have recently been reviewed and modified. It is important that all dental professionals are aware of these changes and apply them to everyday practice, as the initial management of the traumatic injury can have a profound effect on long-term prognosis for our patients. To present the latest research findings on dento-alveolar trauma we have brought together a group of highly qualified endodontists who have shown both a passion and talent for the education of current and future dental professionals.
